- how Young Sen 'Yvonne' (BE (Chemical) '94, PhD (Biotech) '99) has an astounding family connection with UNSW. Since 1959, 28 members of her extended family, who now live in Malaysia, Singapore, Hong Kong and Australia, have attended the university. "I can’t really speak for everyone, but my parents and I came to UNSW because it has a very high reputation in Asia and my mum and dad, as graduates, wouldn’t let me consider any other Australian university," says Yvonne, who now lives in Singapore with her husband Ong Chin Soon ‘Ernest’ (BE (Elec) ‘97) and three children.

Yvonne’s parents, Chow Yew Kee (BE (Elec) ‘69) and Hu Chiu Fong (BSc (Chem) ’68, DipEd ’69), met at UNSW and Yvonne fell in love with her future husband here, too. “I think that many of my relatives met their future husbands or wives at UNSW,” she says. "My dad’s family was very poor, so as a student he had to save money and stay in shared accommodation with other students. I guess there were lots of opportunities to get to know each other!"

Her uncle Fong Voon Seng (BSc (Chem) ’71, GDip (BioChem Eng) ’72) used ping pong as an icebreaker. "It’s the sport that I am most passionate about," he says. "And through this game, I made friends with Australians who played. We met regularly at the sports centre and organised the University Table Tennis team which participated in the intervarsity games."

Their most significant match was against the visiting Chinese national team in 1973, during the Cold War. "This was the beginning of the famous ‘Ping Pong Diplomacy’, an event really unforgettable and meaningful," he says.
